Some of the finest young talent in the world has been on show at the under-20 Toulon Tournament in France. Sportsmail's Dominic King has been there and runs the rule over the stand-outs with five future stars for England and five from the rest of the world.

FIVE FUTURE ENGLAND STARS

JAMES WARD-PROWSE (Southampton)

A shining example of the quality coming through St Mary's academy. The highlight of the midfielder's tournament was his brilliant free-kick in the 2-1 defeat by Brazil.

MICHAEL KEANE (Manchester United)

Ryan Giggs considered playing the defender when United beat Hull at the end of last season. Keane, 21, is powerful and comfortable on the ball and England's best defender here.

Rising stars: Southampton's James Ward-Prowse (left) and Manchester United's Michael Keane have shone

NATHAN REDMOND (Norwich City)

Only made his debut at this level 12 months ago when thrown in against Italy and the midfielder has gone from strength to strength. His speed and ambition mean top-flight clubs will watch him.

Quick rise: Norwich's Nathan Redmond is a speedster with skill who will make big clubs take notice

JAKE FORSTER-CASKEY (Brighton)

Capped a fine performance in the opening 3-0 win over Qatar with an exquisite goal and has progressed with each subsequent midfield appearance. He is never afraid to take possession of the ball and is always looking to link the play. He could be a key member of Gareth Southgate's squad over the next 12 months.

TYIAS BROWNING (Everton)

His club manager Roberto Martinez had this imposing defender on the bench regularly towards the end of last season. Here, Browning has shown why Martinez is confident he will play in the Barclays Premier League next season. Strong and versatile, he rises to each subsequent challenge.

On the up: Expect to see imposing defender Tyias Browning appear in the Premier League for Everton soon

RODRIGO CAIO (Brazil & Sao Paulo)

Can see one step ahead of opponents. Sits deep in midfield but has the tricks to break forward. Passes with aplomb and repels danger.

Full package: Brazil's Rodrigo Caio has all the attributes to dominate a midfield and start an attack

DORIA (Brazil & Botafogo)

His central defensive partner Marquinhos is wanted by Barca but the uncompromising Doria is just as impressive.

Hard man: Doria, a tough Brazilian defender, has been impressive throughout the Toulon Tournament

CHANG MIN LEE (South Korea & Gyeong Nam)

If he makes the right progress, this technically efficient and energetic midfielder could soon play in Europe.

HELDER COSTA (Portugal & Benfica)

Fast winger who scored in three consecutive games. His name will have made its way into the notebooks of countless scouts.
